

Phantasmagorical

That phantasmagorical machine — the Chitty Chitty Bang Bang car — has lost none of its magical appeal with children, if Slough youngsters are anything to go by.

When it stopped outside Suter's on Saturday to let ten-year-old Adrian Hall, who plays Jeremy in the film, get out, a crowd soon gathered.

Reason for the visit was a presentation to the winners of the store's "Battle of Britain" competition — Mr. and Mrs. Robert Clarke, of Bagshot, Surrey.

They received tickets for the opening night tomorrow of Essoldo's new luxury cinema in Gerrards Cross when the film, Battle of Britain, is showing in aid of R.A.F. charities.

Adrian delivered his congratulatory speech with composure, even though it lasted barely 30 seconds. Then off to Suter's at Uxbridge for a repeat performance.

Tomorrow the car will be at the Essoldo, Gerrards Cross between 2 p.m. and 4 p.m. Children who bring their parents to buy tickets for the charity opening have been promised a ride in the car.
